St. Louis Architect Schaub & Srote to Move Kirkwood Office to Brentwood

(ST. LOUIS, MO – May 25, 2017) – Schaub & Srote Architects | Planners | Interiors recently announced plans to relocate its office headquarters and studio to a new, larger building in Brentwood, MO. Plans to move were necessitated by the significant growth of clients and staff over the last few years. The new Brentwood facility will provide increased space and offers an efficient design studio and office layout. It will also support Schaub & Srote's continued growth and expansion and provide a better work environment for current and future staff. The effective move date is planned for June 1, 2017.

"We have enjoyed our time in Kirkwood, but to continue to grow our business in terms of creativity and innovation, we require a work space that will allow our talented staff to collaborate most effectively," says Schaub & Srote partner and architect, David Schaub. The firm has operated from their Kirkwood office since 2012.

"I believe the expansion emphasizes our commitment to both our clients and our employees," said Robert Srote, partner and architect of Schaub & Srote. "Our new facility will help us continue to grow and keep pace with our clients' needs."

The firm's new Brentwood office building will be less than four miles east of the present Kirkwood location and will undergo a complete exterior renovation. The new address for Schaub & Srote will be 2900 S Brentwood Blvd., Brentwood, MO 63144. The Kirkwood office building is currently listed for sale.
